Maddie is an associate in the firm's litigation group where she focuses on complex litigation matters including environmental torts, securities, and class action matters.

She was a member of the trial team pursuing claims on behalf of the State of Oregon against Monsanto Company for PCB contamination, which rendered a nearly-$700 million settlement for the State, the largest environmental settlement in Oregon history. Maddie continues to litigate claims for PCB contamination against Monsanto Company on behalf of the City of Seattle and she is currently a member of the team representing the State of Oregon against various entities, including DuPont and 3M, for PFAS contamination.

Prior to joining Stoll Berne, Maddie served as a law clerk for the Honorable Scott Shorr (Oregon Court of Appeals).
